Description

The three boys expected to find the cottage vacant, but to their surprise a large, white cat was sitting by the open window. "Someone must live here already," they said. "The cat would not be sitting there by herself."

So Palko and his friends discover a lonely lady who needs their help, and who needs, most of all, to know the Lord Jesus as her Savior. This delightful story is complete in itself, but those who learned about Palko in the book "Sunshine Country" will enjoy reading more about him in "The Three Comrades".
